

Access Update: National Climatic Data Center Online Document Library

There are two ways for Federal depository libraries to access the National Climatic Data Center Online Document Library.

- 1) If your library has a .edu, .gov, .mil, or .us domain extension, you may gain access to the database without a login and password. Please be advised that the URL for this access has changed to: <http://www7.ncdc.noaa.gov/IPS>.
- 2) If your library is accessing this resource through the depository username and password, nothing has changed. The URL is still the same. The username and password are also still the same.

The National Climatic Data Center Online Document Library is one of the Federal databases available at no fee to libraries in the Federal Depository Library Program. More about this resource is available here.